What would happen if the healings happened today?

The Named is a new one-hour drama series. Before a single episode is filmed, we are reading the pilot out loud, on Zoom and in churches. We would like to read it in yours.

WHAT THE SHOW IS

A teacher arrives in modern-day Houston, and people start getting well. Some fall to their knees. Some reach for their phones. Everyone has a theory about who he is.

The story is told through the people who are healed and the people around them. It is set in a city your congregation will recognize, among people like them.

GROUNDED IN SCRIPTURE

Every episode grows out of a healing account in the Gospels and asks how it would land today: who would film it, who would doubt it, who would be afraid.

Kyle Rogan, a Bible study teacher and the author of a published Bible study on the Old Testament, is the show's theologian and co-creator. He works on every script.

FOUR WAYS YOUR CHURCH CAN HELP

01 Host

Host a reading of the pilot or a screening night. We bring the script and the readers. You bring the room.

02 Share

Tell your congregation and your small groups. Anyone can sign up for a seat at a reading, on Zoom or in person.

03 Pray

Pray for the writers, the cast and crew, and for everyone who hears the story.

04 Appear as extras

When we film, we will need people in the crowd. Churches on our list hear about it first.

WHAT A READING NIGHT LOOKS LIKE

1. We read the full pilot live, out loud.
2. Your people answer two questions: which character stayed with you, and what confused you.
3. Small groups take home a discussion guide tied to the pilot.

THE NEXT STEP

Fill out the short host form at [WEBSITE], or write to us at joaquin@calorhumanofilms.com.

We will ask your name, church, city, and the rough size of your congregation.

Who is making it: Joaquin Camilo, creator · Janet Craig, producer · Kyle Rogan, theologian and co-creator · Chris Givens, writer

A Calor Humano production